An economic theory of Say's Law holds that everything that's made will get sold. The money from anything that's produced is used to ① buy something else. There can never be a situation ② which a firm finds that it can't sell its goods and so has to dismiss workers and close its factories. Therefore, recessions and unemployment are impossible. Picture the level of spending like the level of water in a bath. Say's Law applies ③ because people use all their earnings to buy things. But what happens if people don't spend all their money, saving some of ④ it instead? Savings are a 'leakage' of spending from the economy. You're probably imagining the water level now falling, so there's less spending in the economy. That would mean firms producing less and ⑤ dismissing some of their workers.

Grandma does not know which year she was born in. I know my father is fifty years old, so I estimate that she must be at least seventy. She is healthier ① than my father. In fact, she has never been in the hospital and criticizes my father for ② being weak and going to the hospital frequently. One of her pastimes ③ are telling us a lot of stories from legends and, best of all, ghost stories. She has also told many stories, ④ which she claims are her own adventures. She even claims that she was once ⑤ kidnapped by a devil and escaped three days later.

Suppose, on your wedding day, your best man delivers a heart warming, moving toast that makes you ① cry. You later learn he didn't write it himself but bought it online. Then, would the toast mean less than it ② was at first, before you knew it was written by a paid professional? Most people would agree the bought wedding toast has less value than an authentic ③ one. Although a bought toast might "work" in the sense of achieving its desired effect, that effect might depend on deception. That is, if you ④ purchased a moving masterpiece of a toast online, you would probably cover it up! If a bought toast depends for its effect on concealing its origin, that's a reason to suspect it's a corrupt version of the real thing. Wedding toasts are goods ⑤ that can, in a sense, be bought. But buying and selling them diminishes their value.
