"You are what you eat." That phrase is often used to ① show the relationship between the foods you eat and your physical health. But do you really know what you are eating when you buy processed foods, canned foods, and packaged goods? Many of the manufactured products made today contain so many chemicals and artificial ingredients ② which it is sometimes difficult to know exactly what is inside them. Fortunately, now there are food labels. Food labels are a good way ③ to find the information about the foods you eat. Labels on food are ④ like the table of contents found in books. The main purpose of food labels ⑤ is to inform you what is inside the food you are purchasing.

One way to make a pursuer work harder is to zigzag. A rabbit running from a coyote, for example, does not run endlessly in a straight line. Instead, it moves quickly back and forth, (A) forcing / forced the coyote to change direction and make sharp turns, too. Zigzagging is easier for a rabbit, which is small, than for the larger coyote. The coyote also cannot tell (B) what / when the rabbit will run this way or that, so it cannot plan its next move. In this way, the rabbit makes the chase more (C) difficult / difficultly and tiring for the coyote. Though a coyote may still succeed in catching its prey, there is a chance that it may tire out, give up, and go look for an easier meal.

The ancient Egyptians developed a way of preserving the bodies of their dead, in the belief ① that the body would be necessary in the ancient Egyptian afterlife and this would ensure their eternal survival. The liver, lungs, and brain ② removed. The heart, however, was left in the body so that it could be judged on the Day of Judgement. The body was then covered with a salt-like substance to stop it from ③ decaying. After that the body was packed with dry material such as linen or straw and ④ wrapped in bandages. The process and techniques differed according to the roles and the wealth of the dead. The ⑤ wealthier the dead, the more elaborate the process.
