1. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 어법상 틀린 것은? (3점)

The belief that humans have morality and animals don't is such a longstanding assumption that it could well be called a habit of mind, and bad habits, as we all know, are extremely hard ① to break. A lot of people have caved in to this assumption because it is easier to deny morality to animals than to deal with the complex effects of the possibility ② that animals have moral behavior. The historical tendency, framed in the outdated dualism of us versus them, ③ is strong enough to make a lot of people cling to the status quo. Denial of who animals are ④ convenient allows for maintaining false stereotypes about the cognitive and emotional capacities of animals. Clearly a major paradigm shift is needed, because the lazy acceptance of habits of mind has a strong influence on ⑤ how animals are understood and treated.

Bad lighting can increase stress on your eyes, as can light that is too bright, or light that shines ① directly into your eyes. Fluorescent lighting can also be ② tiring. What you may not appreciate is that the quality of light may also be important. Most people are happiest in bright sunshine this may cause a release of chemicals in the body ③ that bring a feeling of emotional wellbeing. Artificial light, which typically contains only a few wavelengths of light, ④ do not seem to have the same effect on mood that sunlight has. Try experimenting with working by a window or ⑤ using full spectrum bulbs in your desk lamp. You will probably find that this improves the quality of your working environment.
