One cool thing about my Uncle Arthur was ① what he could always pick the best places to camp. One time, we went to Garrison Rock. Uncle Arthur said that the Indians stayed there. On trips like this, he would always have a good story ② to tell. His stories were always aimed at ③ helping us children use our brains to get out of trouble. For example, one story was about a guy being ④ chased by a big dog. They ran into a field. We kids were thinking that the dog would catch him. But the guy saw a bathtub in the field. He ran to the bathtub and ⑤ pulled it over himself. The dog just barked and barked until it went away. Then the guy came out of the bathtub, and went home.

Reality TV programs are products, just like T-shirts or coffee, and consumers can't seem to turn them off. But why do consumers keep ① watching them? This is one type of question consumer behavior researchers are interested in answering. Researchers say ② that reality TV programs offer several benefits to consumers, including satisfying their curiosity. "We all like to watch people in situations ③ which we ourselves might be pressured. We can feel what they are feeling but at a safe distance," says Professor Kip Williams of Macquarie University. We also role-play with ourselves in the context of the show, ④ imagining how we might react in a similar situation. This, researchers say, can teach us ⑤ to be self-improving.

Skateboarding is one of the best ways to replace snowboarding when there is no snow. They are almost the same in that the actions include riding and performing tricks ① using a board. However, the difference is that in skateboarding, the asphalt tends to hurt ② much more than snow when you fall on the ground. Be sure to wear protective equipment such as a helmet, wrist guards, and elbow pads even if your friends point and ③ laugh. Skate parks provide the safe environment without cars ④ keep your board skills improved. Also, a long downward road without cross streets could be the perfect area ⑤ where you practice basic skills.
