1. 밑줄 친 부분이 다음 글에서 의미하는 바로 가장 적절한 것은?

The position of the architect rose during the Roman Empire, as architecture symbolically became a particularly important political statement. Cicero classed the architect with the physician and the teacher and Vitruvius spoke of "so great a profession as this." Marcus Vitruvius Pollio, a practicing architect during the rule of Augustus Caesar, recognized that architecture requires both practical and theoretical knowledge, and he listed the disciplines he felt the aspiring architect should master: literature and writing, draftsmanship, mathematics, history, philosophy, music, medicine, law, and astronomy — a curriculum that still has much to recommend it. All of this study was necessary, he argued, because architects who have aimed at acquiring manual skill without scholarship have never been able to reach a position of authority to correspond to their plans, while those who have relied only upon theories and scholarship were obviously "hunting the shadow, not the substance."

- ① seeking abstract knowledge emphasized by architectural tradition
- ② discounting the subjects necessary to achieve architectural goals
- ③ pursuing the ideals of architecture without the practical skills
- ④ prioritizing architecture's material aspects over its artistic ones
- ⑤ following historical precedents without regard to current standards

People are correct when they feel that the written poetry of literate societies and the oral poetry of non-literate ones differ considerably from the everyday language spoken in the community. Listeners not only accept the (a) strange use of words, rearrangement of word order, assonance, alliteration, rhythm, rhyme, compression of thought, and so on — they actually expect to find these things in poetry and they are disappointed when poetry does not sound "poetic." But those who regard poetry as a (b) different category of language altogether are deaf to the true achievements of the poet. Rather, the poet artfully manipulates the same raw materials of his language as are used in everyday speech; his skill is to find new possibilities in the resources already in the language. In much the same way that people living at the seashore become so accustomed to the sound of waves that they no longer hear it, most of us have become (c) sensitive to the flood tide of words, millions of them every day, that hit our eardrums. One function of poetry is to depict the world with a (d) fresh perception — to make it strange — so that we will listen to language once again. But the successful poet never departs so far into the strange world of language that none of his listeners can (e) follow him. He still remains the communicator, the man of speech.

When it comes to medical treatment, patients see choice as both a blessing and a burden. And the burden falls primarily on women, who are ① typically the guardians not only of their own health, but that of their husbands and children. "It is an overwhelming task for women, and consumers in general, ② to be able to sort through the information they find and make decisions," says Amy Allina, program director of the National Women's Health Network. And what makes it overwhelming is not only that the decision is ours, but that the number of sources of information ③ which we are to make the decisions has exploded. It's not just a matter of listening to your doctor lay out the options and ④ making a choice. We now have encyclopedic lay-people's guides to health, "better health" magazines, and the Internet. So now the prospect of medical decisions ⑤ has become everyone's worst nightmare of a term paper assignment, with stakes infinitely higher than a grade in a course.

Studies in psychology have reported cases in which competitive incentives resulted in lower task effort, and their focus was on the psychological underpinnings of the reduction in motivation. For example, competition presents an inevitable conflict between the motivation to achieve one's personal goal and the ① desire to maintain good relationships with others. When the maintenance of interpersonal relationships is important, with their counterparts in particular or with others generally, competitors experience an ② internal conflict that can harm their desire to achieve their goal and taint the good feeling brought about by winning. Exline and Lobel found that the perception of oneself as a target for upward social comparison often makes people ③ uncomfortable. When they believe that others are making envious comparisons with them, people feel uneasiness, distress, or sorrow. Feelings of guilt, an emotion generally associated with high motivation for goal-achievement, lead to ④ stronger motivation and performance in the pursuit of competitive goals. Consequences of this emotional state include lower task motivation in a competition and preferences for more cooperative and altruistic outcomes, such as ⑤ diminishing the significance of the outcome or sharing the winner's reward.

Although empathy is widely praised by scholars and public figures, not everyone is an empathy booster. Critics of empathy argue that empathy will not save us from interpersonal and intergroup conflict. In fact, they argue, empathy makes such conflicts worse. These critics maintain that empathy can be exhausting and lead to burnout, insensitivity to suffering, or worse. They argue that we tend to empathize strongly with our in-group and resist empathizing with out-groups, and even enjoy the suffering of out-groups in competitive or threatening contexts. Thus, the prescription for more empathy _____. Empathy, they argue, can further entrench conflict and force us into an us vs. them mentality. Finally, even when we try to empathize with others who are dissimilar from us or in unfamiliar contexts, sometimes we are unable to accurately empathize with their experiences, causing further misunderstandings and frustration. Critics of empathy argue that we should give up on empathy and employ other tools in pursuit of social harmony, e.g., rational compassion or moral emotions like fear, anger, and shame.

- ① underestimates the invisible conflicts possible within a group
- ② is triggered by the need for solutions to emotional conflicts
- ③ is often counterproductive in cases of conflict
- ④ functions as a facilitator in the resolution of social disharmony
- ⑤ raises questions about negative attitudes toward social disharmony

Humour involves not just practical disengagement but cognitive disengagement. As long as something is funny, we are for the moment not concerned with whether it is real or fictional, true or false. This is why we give considerable leeway to people telling funny stories. If they are getting extra laughs by exaggerating the silliness of a situation or even by making up a few details, we are happy to grant them comic licence, a kind of poetic licence. Indeed, someone listening to a funny story who tries to correct the teller — 'No, he didn't spill the spaghetti on the keyboard and the monitor, just on the keyboard' — will probably be told by the other listeners to stop interrupting. The creator of humour is putting ideas into people's heads for the pleasure those ideas will bring, not to provide _____ information.

- ① accurate
- ② detailed
- ③ useful
- ④ additional
- ⑤ alternative

밑줄 친 부분은 '수작업 기술 없이 학문에만 의존한(relied only upon theories and scholarship)' 건축가들을 묘사한다. 이는 실체(substance)에 해당하는 실용적 기술 없이, 그림자(shadow)에 해당하는 이론이나 이상만을 추구하는 행위를 의미한다. 따라서 '실용적 기술 없이 건축의 이상을 추구하는 것'이 가장 적절한 의미이다.

The central theme is that poetry takes the 'raw materials' of everyday language and 'manipulates' them to create a 'fresh perception' and 'make it strange,' thereby refreshing our experience of language itself. The title 'Make It New: How Poetry Refreshes Everyday Language' accurately encapsulates this core function.

③번은 문맥상 '그 정보의 출처들을 가지고 우리가 결정을 내린다'는 의미가 되어야 한다. 뒷 문장 'we are to make the decisions'는 완전한 문장이 아니며, '~를 가지고'라는 의미의 전치사가 필요하다. 따라서 'the sources of information'을 선행사로 하여 'from which we are to make the decisions' 또는 'with which~'와 같이 '전치사+관계대명사' 형태가 되어야 자연스럽다. which만으로는 문법적으로나 의미적으로 어색하다. ① typically는 the guardians를 수식하는 부사이다. ② to be able는 가주어 It에 대한 진주어이다. ④ making은 listening과 병렬 구조를 이루는 동명사이다. ⑤ has become은 단수 주어 the prospect에 대한 단수 동사이다.

글의 전체적인 내용은 경쟁이 대인 관계 유지 욕구와 충돌하여 과업 동기를 낮출 수 있다는 것이다. 승리로 인해 타인의 시기를 받게 되면 불편함, 괴로움, 슬픔을 느끼고 죄책감(guilt)을 느끼게 되는데, 이러한 감정 상태는 과업 동기 저하(lower task motivation)로 이어진다고 했다. 따라서 죄책감이 경쟁 목표 추구에 대한 동기를 '강화한다(stronger)'는 것은 문맥에 맞지 않으며, '약화시킨다(weaker)'가 적절하다.

이 글은 공감(empathy)이 갈등을 해결하기보다 오히려 악화시킬 수 있다는 비판적 견해를 소개한다. 공감은 내집단에 편향되고, 갈등을 심화시키며, '우리 대 그들'이라는 사고방식을 강요할 수 있다고 주장한다. 따라서 '더 많은 공감을 하라'는 처방(prescription for more empathy)은 갈등 상황에서 종종 '역효과를 낳는다(is often counterproductive)'는 결론에 이를 수 있다.

글은 유머가 사실 여부(real or fictional, true or false)에 상관없이 받아들여지는 '인식적 거리두기(cognitive disengagement)'를 수반한다고 설명한다. 재미있는 이야기를 할 때 과장하거나 세부 사항을 지어내도 용인되는 이유는, 유머를 만드는 사람의 목적이 즐거움을 주는 것이지 빈칸에 해당하는 정보를 제공하는 것이 아니기 때문이다. 따라서 유머는 '정확한(accurate)' 정보를 제공하는 것을 목표로 하지 않는다.
