(A) Fighting against the force of the water was a thrilling challenge. Sophia tried to keep herself planted firmly in the boat, paying attention to the waves crashing against the rocks. As the water got rougher, she was forced to paddle harder to keep the waves from tossing her into the water. Her friends Mia and Rebecca were paddling eagerly behind her to balance the boat. They were soaked from all of the spray. Mia shouted to Sophia, "Are you OK? Aren't (a) you scared?" (B) "You've got a good point. It's a real advantage to graduate from college with the mindset of a daring adventurer," Mia said. Rebecca quickly added, "That's why I went to Mongolia before I started my first job out of college. Teaching English there for two months was a big challenge for me. But (b) I learned a lot from the experience. It really gave me the courage to try anything in life." Listening to her friends, Sophia looked at (c) her own reflection in the water and saw a confident young woman smiling back at her. (C) "I'm great!" Sophia shouted back excitedly. Even though the boat was getting thrown around, the girls managed to avoid hitting any rocks. Suddenly, almost as quickly as the water had got rougher, the river seemed to calm down, and they all felt relaxed. With a sigh of relief, Sophia looked around. "Wow! What a wonderful view!" (d) she shouted. The scenery around them was breathtaking. Everyone was speechless. As they enjoyed the emerald green Rocky Mountains, Mia said, "No wonder rafting is the best thing to do in Colorado!" (D) Agreeing with her friend, Rebecca gave a thumbs-up. "Sophia, your choice was excellent!" she said with a delighted smile. "I thought you were afraid of water, though, Sophia," Mia said. Sophia explained, "Well, I was before I started rafting. But I graduate from college in a few months. And, before I do, I wanted to do something really adventurous to test my bravery. I thought that if I did something completely crazy, it might give (e) me more confidence when I'm interviewing for jobs." Now they could see why she had suggested going rafting.

In technological design, an aspiration towards seamlessness aims to make the technological experience for humans blend seamlessly into our everyday lives. Essentially, this aspiration aims towards experiences where people are no longer (a) aware of the technology, the interface or the differences between human-technology and human-human interaction. Considering the metaphor of seams in clothing, we can say that we aspire to seamless aesthetics by stitching the seams closely, pressing them flat and making sure they are (b) hidden on the inside so that we wear clothing rather than pieces of fabric. When designers and engineers talk about technological seamlessness, they are often referring to ease of use and convenience. For example, in interface design, an aspiration towards seamlessness (c) ensures the experience for the user flows and is not stressful or irritating. Most of us would have had experiences of (d) poor interface designs or apps in workplaces that make things more complicated and irritating, and have longed for more seamless interfaces. Technological seamlessness can also include less visible screens in new technologies, or virtual reality technologies with a seamless technological design. The aim is to immerse the user experience such that the visual interaction might be described as inside the screen rather than a body interacting with a digital console or object as separate entities. Similarly, seamlessness in humanoid robotic design aims to make humanoids (e) distinguishable from a human body.

Think of yourself. When you decide to get up and get a drink of water, for example, you don't consciously organize or consider the host of steps involved. Imagine if we ①had to consider every single muscle that needed to be contracted or relaxed just to stand up and walk. It would be tiresome and very slow — as patients recovering from a brain injury affecting the motor system ②knows. The autopilot parts of our brain do it for us automatically, ③freeing up our conscious mind for more important jobs. It is the older parts of our brain ④that support these automatic processes that allow us to move, hear, see, and use many of our social skills. More recently evolved abilities like talking, reading, and writing are far less automated. So, most of the time, ⑤what you are perceiving, feeling, or thinking is based on a very crude and fast analysis that happens completely without your awareness.

Once an event is noticed, an onlooker must decide if it is truly an emergency. Emergencies are not always clearly (a) ① labeled as such; "smoke" pouring into a waiting room may be caused by fire, or it may merely indicate a leak in a steam pipe. Screams in the street may signal an attack or a family quarrel. A man lying in a doorway may be having a coronary — or he may simply be sleeping off a drunk. A person trying to interpret a situation often looks at those around him to see how he should react. If everyone else is calm and indifferent, he will tend to remain so; if everyone else is reacting strongly, he is likely to become alert. This tendency is not merely blind conformity; ordinarily we derive much valuable information about new situations from how others around us behave. It's a (b) ② rare traveler who, in picking a roadside restaurant, chooses to stop at one where no other cars appear in the parking lot. But occasionally the reactions of others provide (c) ③ accurate information. The studied nonchalance of patients in a dentist's waiting room is a poor indication of their inner anxiety. It is considered embarrassing to "lose your cool" in public. In a potentially acute situation, then, everyone present will appear more (d) ④ unconcerned than he is in fact. A crowd can thus force (e) ⑤ inaction on its members by implying, through its passivity, that an event is not an emergency. Any individual in such a crowd fears that he may appear a fool if he behaves as though it were.

People have always wanted to be around other people and to learn from them. Cities have long been dynamos of social possibility, foundries of art, music, and fashion. Slang, or, if you prefer, "lexical innovation," has always started in cities — an outgrowth of all those different people so frequently exposed to one another. It spreads outward, in a manner not unlike trans-missible disease, which itself typically "takes off" in cities. If, as the noted linguist Leonard Bloomfield argued, the way a person talks is a "composite result of what he has heard before," then language innovation would happen where the most people heard and talked to the most other people. Cities drive taste change because they _____, who not surprisingly are often the creative people cities seem to attract. Media, ever more global, ever more far-reaching, spread language faster to more people.

- ① provide rich source materials for artists
- ② offer the greatest exposure to other people
- ③ cause cultural conflicts among users of slang
- ④ present ideal research environments to linguists
- ⑤ reduce the social mobility of ambitious outsiders

Everyone who drives, walks, or swipes a transit card in a city views herself as a transportation expert from the moment she walks out the front door. And how she views the street . That's why we find so many well-intentioned and civic-minded citizens arguing past one another. At neighborhood meetings in school auditoriums, and in back rooms at libraries and churches, local residents across the nation gather for often-contentious discussions about transportation proposals that would change a city's streets. And like all politics, all transportation is local and intensely personal. A transit project that could speed travel for tens of thousands of people can be stopped by objections to the loss of a few parking spaces or by the simple fear that the project won't work. It's not a challenge of the data or the traffic engineering or the planning. Public debates about streets are typically rooted in emotional assumptions about how a change will affect a person's commute, ability to park, belief about what is safe and what isn't, or the bottom line of a local business.

- ① relies heavily on how others see her city's streets
- ② updates itself with each new public transit policy
- ③ arises independently of the streets she travels on
- ④ tracks pretty closely with how she gets around
- ⑤ ties firmly in with how her city operates

이 글의 핵심어는 'seamlessness(이음매 없음)'로, 기술이 사용자의 일상에 완벽하게 녹아들어 기술 자체를 인식하지 못하게 만드는 디자인 목표를 설명한다. 이는 곧 기술이 더 이상 기술처럼 느껴지지 않는 상태를 지향하는 것이므로, '융화되기: 기술이 기술처럼 느껴지지 않을 때(Blending In: When Tech Stops Feeling Like Tech)'가 글 전체의 주제를 가장 잘 나타내는 제목이다.

②번 'knows'의 주어는 'patients recovering from a brain injury affecting the motor system'에서 복수 명사인 'patients'이다. 따라서 동사는 주어의 수에 맞춰 복수형인 'know'가 되어야 한다. 단수 동사 'knows'는 어법상 틀리다.

(c)가 포함된 문장은 '하지만 때때로 다른 사람들의 반응은 (c)정확한 정보를 제공한다'는 의미이다. 그러나 바로 뒤따르는 예시는 치과 대기실 환자들이 내면의 불안과 달리 겉으로는 태연한 척하는 상황을 보여준다. 이는 다른 사람들의 반응이 실제 내면 상태를 반영하지 않는, 즉 '부정확한(inaccurate)' 또는 '오해의 소지가 있는(misleading)' 정보를 제공하는 경우이므로, 'accurate'는 문맥상 적절하지 않다.

5. [정답] ②

이 글은 도시가 언어 혁신과 유행의 변화를 주도하는 이유를 설명한다. 그 핵심 원인으로 다양한 사람들이 서로에게 빈번하게 노출된다는 점('so frequently exposed to one another')과 가장 많은 사람들이 서로 듣고 말하는 장소라는 점('where the most people heard and talked to the most other people')을 반복해서 강조한다. 따라서 빈칸에는 도시가 '다른 사람들에게 가장 큰 노출을 제공하기' 때문에 유행 변화를 주도한다는 내용이 들어가야 한다.

사람들은 각자 자신이 운전하고, 걷고, 대중교통을 이용하는 경험을 바탕으로 스스로를 교통 전문가로 여깁니다. 교통에 대한 논쟁은 데이터나 공학적 사실보다는, 변화가 자신의 통근, 주차, 안전 등에 미칠 영향에 대한 '지극히 개인적인(intensely personal)' 감정적 가정에 기반한다고 설명합니다. 이는 개인이 거리를 보는 방식이 '자신이 (도시에서) 어떻게 돌아다니는지(how she gets around)'와 매우 밀접하게 관련되어 있음을 의미합니다.
